(Summary and Excerpts)

The article repeats the old regime theory, according to which it was the Polish "bourgeoisie," Sanacja politicians and generals etc. who were responsible for Poland's defeat in September 1939.

"For a long number of years, the apologists of the "Sanacja" regime have been trying to prove that September 1939 could not have been avoided and that they had not neglected anything by way of defence preparations, against Hitlerism. It was possible to tell such lies over the "Voice of America", "Free Europe" or the BBC, but it was quite impossible to convince reasonable people even in the West.
