Romania - Radio Bucharest announced yesterday that six new professorships have been added to the Bucharest branch of the Philosophical Institute "in order to adhere to the scientific materialistic dialectic conception and in order to explain scientifically the theory of evolution... the workers will learn that the evolutionary theory according to religious practices was a conception and weapon of the dominant classes." Bucharest also carries a commentary on "economic relations among socialist countries" which stresses that the coordination of national planning is based on the "free consent" of each socialist country. The commentary cites figures meant to demonstrate the advantages of socialist economic collaboration.
