Your Excellency,

I have read with great interest, of your efforts to prepare a factual report on the savage executions of Hungarian Youth, who fought for freedom and lost so gallantly.

I am British born, so I do not need to dwell on the ^{Painful} ~~powerful~~ years which the brave people of our island birthplace endured. I believe however that the British People having thus endured, have a strong bond of affection for the Hungarian Patriots.

I send you my sincerest praise, as I read with great pride, that "Sir Leslie Munro has compiled a "forceful" report on the latest situation in Hungary, the contents of which are a closely guarded secret to prevent advance information "leaking" to the Communist delegation.

I send you herewith the original of a poem which expresses my thought and feelings. I hope you will do me the honor of reading it, and passing it on to Dr. Bela Fabian.

We all need to be encouraged at times, but rest assured millions of fine human beings, all over the world are spiritually with you, even though most of them do not write to say so.

I send you and those associated with you in your fight for Human Dignity my humble thanks.

Respectively

D. Arnold Evans

TO A HUNGARIAN PATRIOT

How warm can be
A candle's flame
In some ~~dusk~~ dank cell
Of black despair,
When stillness louder
Than the storm
Comes crashing through
The troubled air;

How warm can be
The constant flame
Within the free soul's
Turmoiled years,
When tyrant's blow
With bloody scorn
To doubt the light
In all men born;

How red the blood
Which stirred by time
And truth's bright flame
To gallant deed
Defy's the thought
Of sudden death,
Yet shields the souls
Of fellow men
And sets the love
Of God alight.

How witless, dull
Are souless men
Whose truth but lies,
Who lie in truth.
Confused they seek
To lead the free,
Not knowing
Love or charity.

How fast the silent years
Go by-
The pompous tyrants
Fall to dust
While freedom's flame-
Eternal light
Holds back the savage
Pagan night.
